Perspectives in Biochemistry

Thirty-one Essays presented to
SIR FREDERICK GOWLAND HOPKINS
by past and present members of his Laboratory

Edited by JOSEPH NEEDHAM and DAVID E. GREEN
15s. net

These thirty-one essays touch on many aspects of the science of life, with all its great bearing on human welfare; physiology and zoology, embryology and genetics, medicine, bacteriology and nutrition. The aim of the writers has been to indicate the most promising lines of advance in the various fields which they survey, and while maintaining a due standard of criticism, to speculate a little on the likely paths of future thought and discovery. The volume commemorates the 75th birthday of Sir Frederick Gowland Hopkins.

ANAHÆMIN
The active hæmatopoietic principle of liver
For combating pernicious anæmia the injection of Anaæmin is now a standard procedure. The advantages resulting from its use are similar to those of other forms of treatment in which a principle of constant clinical activity is administered in place of a crude extract of uncertain potency. It has been reported that the response to Anaæmin is so certain that 'it is possible almost to guarantee a weekly rise of half a million in red blood-count from a weekly 2 c.c. injection... indeed, this dose seems usually to be too large....'
